

Protecting Her Heart (Seals Security Book 3)

Evie Daltons mother often quoted that old adage about lemons and lemonade but its hard to make due with what you have when your life is falling apart. Evie is no stranger to hardship; her fathers choices ruined her life six years ago and shes still feeling the repercussions of his selfishness. Losing her job and her home in a months time means shes almost destitute when she stumbles into Seals Security for a job interview. Becoming arrogant Luke Stewarts personal assistant was not part of her life plan. But when faced with living on the streets or dealing with Lukes less than appealing personality, what choice does she have? Luke Stewart decided over a decade ago that women were too much trouble and recent events havent changed his outlook. After nine temps and eight months of trying to find a decent replacement for his retired personal assistant without success, hes not ready for Evie or her sassy nature. Now shes giving him fits over being late to meetings and telling him to pick up his own damned dry cleaning. With Evie on the other side of his office door, the only thing Luke wants to know is whether hes in charge or is she?
