

Tasha and Davis at 333 Harpers Cove (Volume 6)

They've just met, but they're on a mission. Tasha Fields and Davis Hogan have something in common: In the world of kink, their fetish is shared. Moving away seems to be the only answer to their furry dilemma, and Harpers Cove seems to be the place. Davis' yen for pony play renders him a submissive, and Tasha, an experienced Dominant to furies, decides on a Dom/subrelationship to explore Davis' needs. They search for a group of ponies, puppies, and other furies for play and companionship, but it all goes awry right away when they unwittingly walk into a BDSM group that seems more focused on slavery than play, and they have a decision to make. Davis is no slave, regardless of his erotic dreams of being draped in leather tack, and Tasha's only desire is to find a way to draw the beautiful, insecure, wounded man out and into a life open to fun and love. In the process, romance blossoms between two people who never intended to get involved as anything more than play partners. But, as usual, she just can't help herself. And as their relationship evolves, the neighborhood's nosy, drunken gossip, Gloria, begins her usual sneak attack, snooping and prowling to see if she can figure out what Harpers Cove's newest neighbors are up to. She's sure it's no good, and the suspense is killing her. She'll go to any lengths to get to the bottom of their private love lives, even a straightforward confrontation. The result is sweet, hot erotica full of humor and snark. Harpers Cove is a sexy, funny place to live, and who knows? If you've always wanted to be a puppy, come see if Harpers Cove might be a great place for you to explore the animal in you. WARNING: Strong, graphic, kinky sexual scenes, including furry play where no actual animals are involved. Not intended for readers under the age of 18.
